BACKGROUND

This supplementary submission highlights a few main issues that continue obstructing the path to the full and absolute prohibition of corporal punishment in Thailand.

Childline Thailand Foundation (CTF) runs a nationwide 24-hour telephone helpline with an easy-to-remember number – 1387. Childline provides its services for any child under the age of 18. The foundation works with various government and NGO stakeholders to safeguard the rights of every child as outlined by the United Nations’ Convention on the Rights of a Child (CRC).

SUGGESTED RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Enact legislation that fully prohibits corporal punishment in all settings.
2. Amend the Article 1567 of the Civil and Commercial Code and fully prohibit corporal punishment.
3. Amend Articles 61 and 65 of the Child Protection Act, 2003 and fully prohibit corporal punishment.
4. Implement and support implementation by other stakeholders of campaigns against corporal punishment in all settings.
5. Implement and support implementation by other stakeholders of educational awareness programs to promote skills of Positive Discipline among parents and all of the professionals that deal with children, including law enforcement officials and corrections officers.
6. Establish and support the established mechanisms created by other stakeholders for reporting and seeking a remedy for a child that falls a victim to corporal punishment – such as child helplines, drop-in centers, outreach based interventions, etc.
7. Government should support and cooperate with non-governmental child helplines, drop-in centers, community outreach programs to effectively prevent and successfully remedy instances of corporal punishment.
