Introduction

Ten years have elapsed since the start of the Kuwaiti Association for the Fundamental Elements of Human Rights (KABEHR) in 2005. During this period, KABEHR has succeeded in realizing many achievements that have had an impact in the promotion and protection of human rights in Kuwait, according to its mission of paying due care to human rights and establishing them from the Shariah perspective.

KABEHR has been a forerunner in terms of its local, regional and international achievements. It has been present in most of the changes that have occurred to the human rights issues of the State of Kuwait. It has kept up with the march of human rights development and confirmed its position by its vigorous presence and active participation.

Foremost among these achievements was its presence at the meetings of the United Nations committees concerned to discuss the reports of the State of Kuwait on its commitment to the terms of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the Convention on the Rights of the Child. KABEHR had previously sent its human rights report to the said committees. These international contributions by KABEHR emanated from its firm belief in the need for synergy of civil society institutions, international organizations and the UN bodies to change and empower human rights and fundamental freedoms.

These contributions and positive steps have been well received locally, regionally and internationally. KABEHR has become a destination for cooperation and partnership by human rights activists and civil society organizations locally, regionally and internationally.

We pray to God Almighty to help us carry this trust and responsibility to support and protect the vulnerable and the oppressed, establish justice and show the beauty and grandeur of the Islamic Shariah and Islam as a religion that consecrates human rights principles and standards and makes compliance therewith an act of worship and closeness to God.

First: the features of promoting the principle of equality in its general framework in the national constitution and the Islamic law (Sharia):

The Kuwaiti constitution and Islamic law (Sharia) take care of promoting the principle of equality in its general framework between male and female, the National Constitution has devoted the principle of equality in the Article 29, which states that "people are equal in human dignity and they are equal as far as the law is concerned in rights and duties without discrimination based on gender, race, language or religion" the Holy Quran promoted the principle of equality by Surah named “women” (O people, fear your Lord, who created you from a single soul. From it He created its spouse, and from both of them scattered many men and women....)

Practically the consecration of the principle of equality between women and men in the general framework appears clearly by looking at public positions that held by women in the state, as there are women appointed as ministers, deputy ministers, directors of departments in governmental organizations and ambassadors, as well as the presence of women recently in the police and judicial offices that was limited to men in the past.
