Replies to List of Issues

Response to Question 4
a) Definition of Discrimination against Women
The Constitution of Zimbabwe (Section 23) is clear that discrimination on the grounds of race, tribe, and place of origin, political opinions, colour, creed, sex, gender, marital status or physical disability is prohibited. The inclusion of ‘sex’ and ‘gender’ in the non-discrimination clause effectively prohibits discrimination against women. As a result, all persons in Zimbabwe, including women, are entitled to enjoy the rights provided in the Declaration of Rights on an equal basis. The Zimbabwe Human Rights Commission (ZHRC) is therefore obliged to investigate discrimination against women. Section 23 further protects women against other forms of discrimination, such as disability and marital status.

Women with Disabilities
A legal framework that offers social protection to people living with disabilities is in place. The framework provides for direct budgetary allocation of resources into the Disabled Persons Fund. In an effort to protect and promote the rights of persons with disabilities, Government formulated a policy on the Equalisation of Employment Opportunities for Disabled Persons in the Public Service, in line with the United Nations Standard Rules on Equalisation of Employment Opportunities for the Disabled Persons of 1993. Furthermore, the Constitution of Zimbabwe prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability. In addition, the Social Welfare Assistance Act [Chapter 17:06] provides for health and education assistance, maintenance allowances, cash transfers, purchases of assistive technologies and special equipment for the disabled.

Recommendations from IDA:

Articles 2, 3, 4, 5

- Collect adequate data on women and girls with disabilities and use disaggregated data and results of studies to develop policies and programmes to promote equal opportunities for them in society.

- Adopt measures to ensure that women with disabilities are consulted and participate in leadership roles in policy development.

- Raise awareness and provide more information about women and girls with disabilities, who are often subjected to multiple forms of discrimination, especially with regard to access to education, employment, access to health care and protection from violence.

Address the heightened risk for girls and women with disabilities of becoming victims of domestic violence, abuse, exploitation and harmful practices, and adopt urgent measures to ensure that both services and information for victims are made accessible to women and girls with disabilities.

- Take steps to accede to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) and its Optional Protocol.

Article 7

- Repeal provisions in the Constitution which exclude persons with disabilities from the right to vote and to be elected on an equal basis with others in accordance with Article 29 of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD), which comprises the latest international standards with respect to participation in political and public life. (This is confirmed in OHCHR thematic study on participation in political and public life by persons with disabilities which explicitly states that there is no reasonable restriction nor exclusion permitted regarding the right to political participation of persons with disabilities, A/HRC/19/36, 21 December 2011).

Article 10

- Adopt measures in the law to ensure the implementation of inclusive education of children with disabilities, such as the obligatory training of all teachers (beyond special education teachers), to require individual education plans for all students, ensure the availability of assistive devices and support in classrooms, educational materials and curricula, ensure the accessibility of physical school environments, encourage the teaching of sign language and disability culture, allocate budget for all of the above. Include inclusive education as an integral part of core teacher training curricula in universities to ensure that the values and
