C. Concerns and recommendations

Statistics

5. The Committee notes the statistics provided by the State party's delegation during the dialogue on citizens and migrant workers based on the results of the population census conducted in 2022. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned about the lack of comprehensive statistics on the demographic composition of the population, including on ethno-religious groups, people of African descent, stateless persons and non-citizens, such as undocumented migrants, asylum seekers and refugees, and on the socioeconomic situation of status of the various population groups. It is also concerned that the 2022 population census did not allow information to be gathered based on the principle of self-identification. This lack limits the Committee's ability to properly assess the situation of groups vulnerable to racial discrimination, including their socioeconomic status and any progress achieved by implementing targeted policies and programmes (arts. 1, 2 and 5).

6. Recalling its previous recommendations,³ General Recommendation No. 8 (1990) concerning the interpretation and application of articles 1 (1) and (4) of the Convention, and its guidelines for reporting under the Convention,⁴ the Committee recommends that the State party collect and provide to the Committee reliable, updated and comprehensive statistics on the demographic composition of the population, based on the principle of self-identification, including on ethno-religious groups, people of African descent, stateless persons and non-citizens, particularly undocumented migrants, asylum seekers and refugees. It also recommends that the State party produce disaggregated statistics on the socioeconomic situation of ethno-religious minority groups, people of African descent and non-citizens and on their access to education, employment, health care and housing, with a view to creating an empirical basis for assessing the equal enjoyment of the rights enshrined in the Convention.

Reservations to the Convention

7. The Committee remains concerned that the State party maintains its broad reservation with respect to implementing the provisions of the Convention provided "that they do not conflict with the precepts of the Islamic Shariah", as well as its reservation to article 22 of the Convention, which may affect the full implementation of the Convention in the State party. The Committee notes the information provided by the State party that the racial discrimination is compatible with the principles of sharia. It further notes the information provided by the delegation of the State party that reviewing and withdrawing the reservations remains under consideration (art. 2).

8. Reiterating its previous recommendations⁵ and considering the information by the State party that reviewing the reservations remains under consideration, the Committee recommends that the State party withdraw its broad reservations to the Convention to ensure the full implementation of the Convention in the State party and avoid misinterpretations on equality among States parties in the application of Article 22.

⁵ CERD/C/SAU/CO/4-9, para. 6

Convention in the domestic legal order

9. The Committee takes note of the information that the Convention is part of the domestic legal order and that the Chief Prosecutor issued a circular requesting the Public Prosecution to invoke the Convention before the courts. Nevertheless, the Committee regrets the lack of information on cases in which the provisions of the Convention were invoked before or applied by domestic courts.

10. The Committee recommends that the State party conduct systematic training programmes and awareness-raising campaigns, in particular for judges, prosecutors, lawyers and law enforcement officials, to ensure that the provisions of the Convention are invoked when relevant by and before domestic courts. It requests the State party to include in its next periodic report concrete examples of the application of the Convention by domestic courts.

National human rights institution

11. The Committee regrets the lack of progress in establishing a national human rights institution in line with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), despite the previous recommendation by the Committee (art. 2).

12. Reiterating its previous recommendations,⁶ and recalling its General Recommendation No. 17 (1993) on the establishment of national institutions to facilitate the implementation of the Convention, the Committee urges that the State party establish, within a clear timeframe, an independent national institution for the promotion and protection of human rights, with a mandate to combat racial discrimination, in full compliance with the Paris Principles.

Special measures to address inequalities

13. The Committee is concerned about the lack of information on special measures taken to address structural inequalities and intersecting forms of discrimination against members of ethno-religious minority groups, people of African descent, stateless persons and non-citizens, such as migrant workers, migrant domestic workers, undocumented migrants and asylum seekers, particularly against women, children and young persons, which disproportionately impedes their enjoyment of the rights protected under the Convention (arts. 1 and 2).

14. Recalling its General Recommendation No. 32 (2009) on the meaning and scope of special measures in the Convention, the Committee recommends that the State party regularly consult with ethno-religious minority groups, people of African descent, stateless persons and non-citizens, such as migrant workers, migrant domestic workers, undocumented migrants and asylum seekers, and particularly women, children and young persons to review the situation on the ground, identify and adopt accordingly special measures to eliminate the existing structural inequalities and intersecting forms of discrimination that affect these groups and remove all obstacles that prevent them from enjoying of their economic, social and cultural rights.

Prohibition of racial discrimination

15. The Committee takes note of the information that justice and equality are guaranteed under Article 8 of the Basic Law of Governance and that the domestic legal framework prohibits discrimination. It also takes note that the State party took measures to adopt a legislation to prohibit racial discrimination in accordance with the recommendations made by the Saudi Human Rights Commission, contained in its annual report on human rights situation in 2019, to develop and adopt a legislation to prohibit racial discrimination in accordance with the State party's obligation under the Convention. Nevertheless, the Committee remains concerned about the lack of comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation containing an explicit definition of racial discrimination on all the grounds enumerated in article 1 of the Convention and expressly prohibiting structural, direct, indirect, and intersecting forms of discrimination in the public and private spheres. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that the domestic legal framework is based on neutral and vague concepts for grounds to prohibit discrimination, such as "residents". It is also concerned about the lack of information on the implementation of the prohibition of discrimination in the domestic legal framework, including intersecting forms of discrimination (arts. 1, 2 and 5).

16. Reiterating its previous recommendations,⁷ the Committee urges that the State party develop and adopt comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation that contains a clear definition of racial discrimination and encompasses structural, direct, indirect, and intersecting forms of discrimination in both the public and private spheres, in accordance with article 1 of the Convention. It also recommends that the State party review its legal framework with a view to bringing it into line with the Convention, explicitly incorporating the principle of equality and the prohibition of racial discrimination on all prohibited grounds, in line with article 1 of the Convention.

Complaints of racial discrimination

17. The Committee takes note that the right of litigation is guaranteed for citizens and residents, in accordance with Article 47 of the Basic Law of Governance and Articles 16 and 17 of the Criminal Procedure Law, and that the Saudi Human Rights Commission is mandated to consider complaints of racial discrimination, in addition to national courts. It also notes the information provided by the delegation that, between 2020 and 2023, the public prosecutor investigated 943 complaints related to racial discrimination and that it filed charges in 289 cases. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned about the lack of detailed and disaggregated information on complaints of racial discrimination, investigations, prosecutions, convictions, and sanctions by domestic courts.

18. Recalling its general recommendation No. 31 (2005) on the prevention of racial discrimination in the administration and functioning of the criminal justice system, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Conduct comprehensive and regular training programmes for police officers, prosecutors and other law enforcement officials on the identification and registration of incidents of racial discrimination and the situation of groups exposed to racial discrimination;

(b) Undertake public education campaigns on the rights enshrined in the Convention and on how to file complaints of racial discrimination, particularly to inform ethno-religious minority groups, people of African descent, migrants, asylum seekers and stateless persons;

(c) Collect statistics, disaggregated by age, gender and ethnic and national origin, on complaints of racial discrimination submitted to the national courts and to the Saudi Commission for Human Rights, on investigations and prosecutions undertaken, convictions handed down and sanctions imposed, and on reparations provided to victims, and include those statistics in its next periodic report.

Hate speech and hate crimes

19. The Committee notes the information provided by the delegation on the legislative framework to combat hate speech and hate crimes, particularly under Article 39 of the Basic Law of Governance, Article 8 of the Civil Association and Organization Law, Article 9 of the Printing and Publication Law and Article 5 of the Audiovisual Media Law. It also takes note that racist motive is considered an aggravating circumstance. The Committee further notes the information provided by the delegation on the revision of school textbooks to remove prejudice and promote understanding. It takes note of the statistics provided by the delegation on cases related to the Audiovisual Media Law and the Printing and Publication Law. The Committee further takes note of information on the codifying and drafting of a Penal Code. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned:

(a) That the legislative framework does not contain provisions that expressly criminalize racist hate speech and hate crimes in accordance with article 4 of the Convention and on all the grounds recognized in article 1;

(b) That the criminalization of hate speech and hate crime under the legislative framework is based on vague concepts, such as “undermining public order” or “contradicts public morals” and that the criminalization of hate speech and hate crimes is limited to nationals excluding groups vulnerable to racial discrimination such as migrants and stateless persons;

(c) About reports of the spread of racist hate speech and the dissemination of negative stereotypes against ethno-religious minority groups, people of African descent, migrants and stateless persons, including on the Internet and social media;

(d) About reports of the use of racist hate speech by public figures, including religious leaders, targeting the Shia ethno-religious minority group and the lack of information on investigations, prosecutions and convictions of such public figures;

(e) About the lack of detailed information on complaints or cases involving hate crimes and hate speech in the State party, prosecutions and convictions and sanctions imposed on perpetrators, notwithstanding the statistics provided by the delegation on cases related to the Audiovisual Media Law and the Printing and Publication Law (arts. 4 and 6).

20. Recalling its general recommendations No. 7 (1985) relating to the implementation of article 4 of the Convention, No. 15 (1993) on article 4 of the Convention and No. 35 (2013) on combating racist hate speech, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Expedite the codification and adoption of the Penal Code and ensure that it explicitly criminalizes racist hate speech and hate crimes in accordance with article 4 of the Convention and includes all the grounds of discrimination recognized in article 1 of the Convention;

(b) Review its legal framework, particularly Article 8 of the Civil Association and Organization Law, Article 9 of the Printing and Publication Law and Article 5 of the Audiovisual Media Law, with a view to bringing them into line with the Convention;

(c) Enhance its efforts to combat the spread of racist hate speech in the media, on the Internet and in social media, in close cooperation with media outlets, Internet service providers, and social media platforms;

(d) Firmly condemn any form of hate speech and distance itself from racist hate speech expressed by public figures, including religious leaders, and ensure that such acts are investigated and adequately punished;

(e) Improve the system for collecting and disaggregating data on complaints of racist hate speech and hate crimes on the number and types of complaints of racist hate speech and hate crimes, the number of investigations, prosecutions and convictions, and the reparation provided to victims, disaggregated by age, gender, and ethnic and national origin of the victims and the perpetrators, and include relevant statistics in its next periodic report.

Racial profiling and use of lethal force

21. The Committee takes note of the information provided by the delegation on the human rights training provided to law enforcement agencies on human rights. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned about:

(a) The lack of information on the prohibition of racial profiling in the legislative framework on law enforcement;

(b) Reports of racial profiling by the law enforcement agencies targeting migrants, particularly migrants from Africa and Southeast Asia, in police operations;

(c) The lack of investigations, prosecutions, convictions and sanctions for acts of racial profiling by law enforcement officials against non-citizens, particularly migrants from Africa and Southeast Asia (arts. 4, 5 and 6).

22. Recalling its general recommendation No. 36 (2020) on preventing and combating racial profiling by law enforcement officials, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt legislation that explicitly prohibits racial profiling by law enforcement officials during police operations;

(b) Establish an independent monitoring body with the competence to receive complaints of racial profiling and racially motivated violence by law enforcement agencies, with safe and accessible reporting channels for victims;

(c) Conduct prompt, thorough, and impartial investigations into all allegations of racial profiling and racially motivated violence by law enforcement officials against migrants, and ensure that the alleged perpetrators are prosecuted and, if convicted, punished with appropriate sanctions and that victims or their families are provided with adequate forms of reparation.

Algorithmic profiling and racial discrimination

23. The Committee takes note of the information on the establishment of the Saudi Authority for Data and Artificial Intelligence. While noting the information on the use by the State party of algorithmic profiling, including automated decision-making, artificial intelligence tools and methods, and the use of facial recognition, in migration, border control and crowd control, particularly during the Hajj and Umrah practices, the Committee is concerned about the lack of information on measures to guarantee the protection of members of groups vulnerable to racial discrimination in this regard.

24. Recalling its General Recommendation No. 36 (2020) on preventing and combating racial profiling by law enforcement officials, the Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to ensure that the use of artificial intelligence does not amount to algorithmic profiling and does not undermine human rights, in particular the right not to be discriminated against, the right to equality before the law, the right to liberty and security of person and the right to privacy.

Criminal justice system and death penalty

25. The Committee takes note of the information provided by the State party on the measures to reform the justice system, including the codification of crimes and penalties, and on the protection safeguards in the criminal justice system, such as the mandatory appeal of death penalty sentences and review of the Supreme Court. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned about reports that:

(a) Members of the Shia ethno-religious minority group, migrant workers and domestic workers, including women, are overrepresented in the criminal justice system and disproportionately subjected to arbitrary detention, torture and ill-treatment along with the absence of fair trial guarantees and coerced confessions, particularly in cases involving the death penalty;

(b) The significant increase in the rate of executions carried out since 2023, in particular among members of the Shia ethno-religious minority group, migrant workers and domestic workers, while the State party does not make available detailed, disaggregated statistics on death sentences imposed and executions carried out, including the type of offence and the demographic data on convicted persons;

(c) Women migrant workers and domestic workers, who experience intersecting discrimination based on gender, language, ethnicity, national origin, and class, are sentenced to death without consideration of gender-related factors during criminal proceedings against them, including the domestic and gender-based violence they endured prior to the crime(arts. 2, 5 and 6).

26. Recalling its General Recommendation No. 31 (2005) on the prevention of racial discrimination in the administration and functioning of the criminal justice system, the Committee recommends that the State party:

- (a) Establish a moratorium on the death penalty with a view to abolishing it;
- (b) Expedite the reform of the justice system and review its legislative framework to ensure that penalties are never imposed for vaguely worded crimes;
- (c) Ensure the right to fair trial proceeding, while ensuring the availability of legal assistance and the inadmissibility of evidence obtained under duress and torture before court and the prompt, independent and effective investigations of torture and ill-treatment allegations;
- (d) Adopt measures to ensure gender-responsive application of the law so that evidence of trauma, economic pressure, child marriage as well as domestic and gender-based violence are adequately taken into consideration in criminal procedures against women migrant workers and women domestic workers sentenced to death, in line with the relevant recommendations of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women;⁸
- (e) Collect and publish disaggregated statistics on death sentences imposed and executions carried out, including the type of offence and the demographic data on convicted persons.

Rights to freedom of opinion and expression and to freedom of association

27. The Committee notes the information provided by the delegation on the Civil Society Associations and Institutions Law, which regulates the registration and operation procedures for civil society organizations. Nevertheless, the Committee remains concerned about reports that human rights defenders, activists, lawyers, and journalists are targets of intimidation, surveillance, harassment, threats, reprisals, arrests and arbitrary detention as a consequence of their work to promote and protect the rights of persons belonging to groups vulnerable to racial discrimination, such as the Shia ethno-religious minority group, the Howeitat tribe, migrant workers and domestic workers. It is further concerned about reports of long term imprisonment sentences and death penalty imposed on human rights defenders, activists, lawyers and journalists, based on the overly broad and vague provisions of the Counter-Terrorism Law and the Anti-Cyber Crime Law (art. 5).

28. The Committee recommends that the State party ensure that the legislative framework on countering extremism, particularly the Counter-Terrorism Law and the Anti-Cyber Crime Law, is not used to intimidate, harass, arrest, detain or prosecute human rights defenders, activists, lawyers and journalists, including those working on the rights of the Shia ethno-religious minority group, the Howeitat tribe, migrant workers and domestic workers, for exercising their rights to freedom of opinion and expression and to freedom of association. It also recommends that the State party conduct effective, thorough, and impartial investigations into all reported cases of intimidation and harassment of, and threats and reprisals against human rights defenders, activists, lawyers and journalists.

Right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion

29. The Committee notes the information provided by the delegation that the legislative framework guarantees the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion for members belonging to the Shia ethno-religious minority group and other religions than Islam. The Committee, however, is concerned about reports that ethno-religious minority groups, in particular non-Sunni ethno-religious minority groups, face obstacles in obtaining permissions to construct religious places of worship. It is further concerned about reports that non-citizens, such as migrant workers and domestic workers from Africa and Southeast Asia who are non-Muslims, face discrimination in the enjoyment of their right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, including restrictions on constructing religious places of worship, organizing cultural activities with a religious character such as public worship and public displaying of religious symbols (art. 5).

30. Reiterating its previous recommendations,⁹ the Committee recommends that the State party take all measures necessary to guarantee the effective exercise of ethno-religious minority groups, in particular non-Sunni ethno-religious minority groups and non-nationals, of their right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, without any discrimination, including by ensuring the freedom to manifest their religion or belief, either individually or in community with others, and in public or private, without being penalized or subjected to reprisals.

Nationality rights

31. The Committee notes the information provided by the delegation on the amendments to the Law on Nationality. The Committee remains concerned that Saudi women married to non-Saudi citizens cannot transfer their nationality to their children, unlike Saudi men married to non-Saudi citizens.

32. Reiterating its previous recommendations,¹⁰ and recalling its General Recommendation No. 30 (2004) on discrimination against non-citizens, the Committee recommends that the State party review and amend its legislative framework, in particular the Law on Nationality, to allow Saudi women married to non-Saudi citizens to transmit their nationality to their children from birth, on an equal footing with Saudi men.

Women belonging to ethnic and ethno-religious minority groups

33. The Committee takes note of the reforms to the State party's legislative framework to promote women's rights in various fields, in accordance with Royal Decree No. 134 of 30 July 2019. However, the Committee remains concerned that women belonging to ethno-religious minority groups, women of African descent, women migrant workers, women domestic workers, women human rights defenders and activists, women in detention, and stateless women remain marginalized and subjected to multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination on grounds of ethnic and national origin, race, colour, religion, age and gender owing to discriminatory provisions in the domestic legislative framework. Racial discrimination prevents enjoyment of their human rights and equal access without discrimination to employment, education, health care and justice (arts. 2 and 5).

34. Recalling its General Recommendation No. 25 (2000) on gender-related dimensions of racial discrimination, and reiterating its previous recommendations,¹¹ the Committee recommends that the State party review its legislative and policy frameworks to eliminate all barriers and restrictions faced by women belonging to ethno-religious minority groups, women of African descent, women migrant workers, women domestic workers, women human rights defenders and activists, women in detention and migrant and stateless women and ensure their equal access to employment, education, health care and justice. To this end, it recommends that the State party incorporate a minority women perspective into all gender-related policies and strategies.

Situation of the Shia ethno-religious minority group

35. The Committee is concerned about the lack of detailed information and official statistics on the situation of the Shia ethno-religious minority group in the State party, particularly on their social and economic situation. The Committee is concerned about the lack of measures taken to address and combat structural discrimination, stigmatization and marginalization targeting members of the Shia ethno-religious minority group, which impedes their enjoyment of the rights protected under the Convention. It is also concerned about reports of the low representation of the Shia ethno-religious minority group in law enforcement agencies, public administration and the judiciary, particularly in senior and decision-making positions (arts. 1, 2 and 5).

⁹ CERD/C/SAU/CO/4-9, para. 24.

¹⁰ CERD/C/SAU/CO/4-9, para. 30.

¹¹ CERD/C/SAU/CO/4-9, para. 28.

36. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt effective measures to address the structural discrimination, stigmatization and marginalization faced by the Shia ethno-religious minority group to ensure their access to education, employment, health care and housing without discrimination. The Committee recommends that the State party take measures to ensure fair and equitable representation of Shia ethno-religious minority group, including women, in the public sector, and in decision-making and high-ranking positions, by identifying and removing the barriers that they face in this respect and by adopting and implementing special measures. It also recommends that the State party include, in its next periodic report, statistics about the Shia ethno-religious minority group, particularly concerning their economic, social and cultural situation.

Situation of the Howeitat Bedouin tribe

37. The Committee takes note of the information provided by the delegation on the human rights safeguards in relation to compensation and resettlement while implementing development projects, such as the NEOM project. However, the Committee is concerned about reports of:

(a) The inadequate consultation process with the Howeitat Bedouin tribe to obtain their free, prior and informed consent prior to the implementing the NEOM project;

(b) The evictions of members belonging to the Howeitat Bedouin tribe without the provision of adequate alternative housing or compensation (arts. 2 and 5).

38. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take measures to ensure meaningful and effective consultations with affected Bedouin tribes to obtain their free, prior and informed consent on any development projects and ensure the rights to property, access to land, housing and natural resources of Bedouin communities;

(b) Adopt measures to guarantee that evictions are carried out in accordance with international human rights standards, that families and individuals affected are provided with adequate alternative housing and compensation and effective remedies are in all cases available to those affected in cases of eviction.

Migrant workers

39. The Committee welcomes the measures taken by the State party to implement the Cabinet Decree No. 166 of 9 October 2000 to improve the situation of migrant workers, including the launch, in 2020, of the Contractual Relationship Improvement Initiative and the Labour Reform Initiative by the Ministry of Human Resources and Social Development, to facilitate job transfer of migrant workers and to leave the State party without the permission of the employer, which came into force in March 2021. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned that:

(a) The labour legal framework still does not provide sufficient protection for migrant workers, in relation to their ability to change jobs and leave the State party, in particular; the requirement to work at least one year with an employer before being able to move to a new employer, the requirement of first reporting an abuse, such as salary non-payment and non-renewal of work permit, and the requirement for migrant workers to submit request to the Ministry of Human Resources and Social Development to leave the State party under a complex administrative procedure and after the payment of a fee;

(b) Migrant workers, particularly domestic workers, face discrimination and exclusion under the legislative framework. The prohibition of discrimination in employment under Article 3 of the Labour Code only applies to Saudi citizens and excludes migrant workers, the minimum wage applies only for Saudi nationals, the lack of minimum wage for migrant workers, and the age of retirement, under Article 38 of the Social Insurance Law, does not apply to migrant workers;

(c) Lower income migrant workers, particularly domestic workers, face obstacles and indirect discrimination regarding family reunification due to the high wage requirement to sponsor a family in the State party compared to their wage while into account the lack of minimum wage for migrant workers and domestic workers in the legislative framework;

(d) Migrant workers, including domestic workers, face discrimination in the exercise of their rights to freedom of association, and to form and join trade unions, particularly under the provisions of the Civil Association and Organization Law and Labour Law, which excludes migrants from the ability to establish civil society organisation and trade unions as well as to join the latter;

(e) Measures taken to protect occupational health and safety of migrant workers are reportedly ineffective with reports of a high mortality rate among migrant workers due to harsh working environment, extreme heat and poor living conditions, notwithstanding the information provided by the delegation on the campaigns organized by Ministry of Human Resources and Social Development to verify the application of occupational safety and health controls related to working under the sun;

(f) Migrant workers are subjected to mandatory HIV/AIDS testing and, if found to be living with HIV, they face deportation (arts. 1, 2 and 5).

40. Reiterating its previous recommendations,¹² the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review its legislative framework, in particular provisions of the Labour Code, the Social Insurance Law and the Civil Association and Organization Law, to repeal restrictions on job mobility and the procedure to submit an application prior to exiting the State party, to apply the minimum wage and the age of retirement on migrant workers, including domestic workers, and ensure their enjoyment of the rights enshrined in the Convention without discrimination, particularly the rights to freedom of association and to form and join trade unions;

(b) Adopt measures to facilitate family reunification of migrant workers, including domestic workers;

(c) Adopt the necessary measures to prevent the death of migrant workers, including by review of its legislative and policy frameworks on occupational safety and health regulations;

(d) Abolish mandatory HIV/AIDS testing for migrant workers and refrain from deporting migrant workers living with HIV.

Domestic workers

41. The Committee welcomes the adoption of the Regulation for domestic workers and those in similar positions, which came into force in October 2024, that introduces protection against passport confiscation and overworking. It also notes the information on the inclusion of the domestic workers under the wage protection system starting from July 2024. The Committee, nevertheless, is concerned about reports that:

(a) Domestic workers, who are predominantly women, do not enjoy the same standards of labour protection as other migrant workers according to the legislative framework and continue to be subjected to abusive working conditions, particularly long working hours, underpayment of wages, restrictions on their rights to family life and privacy, requested to obtain the approval of their employer to exit the State party and subjected to more complex restrictions regarding job mobility;

(b) Women domestic workers are subjected to physical and sexual abuse and women domestic workers are excluded from the protection granted under the Anti-Harassment Law, promulgated by Royal Decree No.96, in 2018, that defines inappropriate behaviour, outlines procedures for investigating complaints and establishes policies to prevent such behaviour in the workplace;

(c) Women domestic workers are subjected to discrimination based on the ground of national origin regarding their rights to equal pay for equal work and to just and favourable remuneration regarding their salaries, according to reports that women domestic workers from Africa are awarded remunerated less than those from Southeast Asia.

42. Reiterating its previous recommendations,¹³ and recalling its General Recommendation No. 25 (2000) on gender-related dimensions of racial discrimination, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Adopt effective measures to ensure that the work of domestic workers is regulated by the Labour Code and that all existing provisions to protect domestic workers from abuse and exploitation are enforced effectively;

(b) Take measures to address abuse and exploitation of domestic workers, including by reviewing its legislative framework to ensure the application of the Anti-Harassment Law on cases related to women migrant domestic workers, and to investigate all allegations of abuse and violence against migrant domestic workers, including physical, verbal or sexual violence, hold perpetrators accountable and provide remedy to the victims;

(c) Take measures to guarantee and protect the rights of migrant domestic workers to equal pay for equal work and to just and favourable remuneration without discrimination, including by introducing a minimum wage in the legislative framework for migrant domestic works, and to address intersecting forms of discrimination on the grounds of gender, race, colour, descent, and national or ethnic origin in all areas of employment.

Access to justice for migrant workers

43. The Committee notes the information provided by the delegation on the statistics on complaints submitted by migrant workers and migrant domestic workers to the Ministry of Human Resources and Social Development and that the public prosecutor receive 2024 regarding domestic migrant workers between 2020 and 2023. The Committee, however, is concerned about:

(a) Reported barriers to migrant workers, particularly domestic migrant workers, accessing justice and remedies, such as the lack of free legal aid services, restriction on their right to freedom of movement and abusive working hours imposed by the employer, and fear of reprisals and deportation;

(b) Lack of detailed information on the complaints submitted by migrant workers and migrant domestic workers before the Ministry of Human Resources and Social Development and the public prosecutor, prosecutions and convictions and sanctions imposed on perpetrators;

(c) Reports of obstacles and undue delays in the enforcement of court decisions concerning abuses committed by Saudi companies against the rights of migrant workers, including non-payment of wages.

¹³ CERD/C/SAU/CO/4-9, para. 20.

44. Reiterating its previous recommendations,¹⁴ the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Take the measures necessary to assess the effectiveness of remedies available to migrant workers and migrant domestic workers, to eliminate all barriers in filing of complaints by migrant workers and migrant domestic workers and to ensure the accessibility and availability of safe reporting channels to victims;

(b) Strengthen its system on statistics regarding complaints by migrant workers and migrant domestic workers to ensure the collection of statistical data, disaggregated by age, gender and ethnic and national origin, on complaints submitted to national courts and to the Ministry of Human Resources and Social Development, on investigations and prosecutions undertaken, convictions handed down and sanctions imposed, and on reparations provided to victims, and include those statistics in its next periodic report;

(c) Enforce protective legislations and policies on migrant workers as well as to ensure the access of migrant workers to effective remedies and adequate reparation in case of violations;

(d) Conduct awareness-raising campaigns among migrant workers and migrant domestic workers on their labour rights and available judicial remedies.

Stateless persons

45. The Committee is concerned about the lack of statistics on stateless persons (Bidoon) and their socioeconomic situation as well as reports of discrimination faced by the Bidoon in access to employment, education, health care and other basic services. It is concerned about the lack of a dedicated determination procedure in relation to statelessness.

46. The Committee recommends that the State party adopt measures to reduce and prevent statelessness and to establish a dedicated and effective determination procedure in relation to statelessness. It also recommends that the State party ensure that stateless persons, particularly the Bidoon, enjoy all human rights without discrimination, including access to work, housing, education, and health care.

Migrants, asylum seekers and refugees

47. The Committee notes the information provided by the State party on its political asylum system, according to Article 42 of the Basic Law on Governance. The Committee, however, is concerned about:

(a) The de facto detention of undocumented migrants and asylum seekers without judicial overview and for an indefinite duration;

(b) Reported substandard and inhuman conditions at the detention facilities of migrants and asylum seekers, which have a disproportionate impact on women and children, and reports of human rights violations by law enforcement officials against arbitrary detained migrants, including excessive and lethal use of force, torture, rape and other forms of sexual violence;

(c) The lack of an asylum procedure, impeding the enjoyment by persons in need of international protection of their fundamental rights;

(d) Reports of the deportations, extradition and forcible return of migrants and asylum seekers in need of international protection, in violation of the principle of non-refoulement;

(e) Reported incidents of systematic pushbacks of migrants and asylum seekers by border law enforcement agencies at the State party's border with Yemen, in 2014, 2022 and 2023, while deploying indiscriminate, excessive and lethal use of force and firearms, leading to death and injuries of migrants and asylum seekers;

¹⁴ CERD/C/SAU/CO/4-9, para. 22.

(f) The lack of investigations, prosecutions, convictions, and sanctions for allegations of human rights violations and abuses, including excessive and lethal use of force and firearms, arbitrary detention, torture and rape and other forms of sexual violence, agencies against migrants and asylum seekers in detention facilities and at the State party's border with Yemen.

48. Recalling its general recommendation No. 30 (2004) on discrimination against non-citizens, the Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Develop and adopt a legal framework in accordance with international standards, particularly the Convention, that provides an adequate protection of migrants, asylum-seekers and refugees and establishes an asylum procedure, in accordance with internationally recognized standards, including the principle of non-refoulement;

(b) Ensure that immigration detention is applied only as a measure of last resort and for the shortest possible period, after an assessment of its legality, necessity and proportionality on a case-by-case basis;

(c) Take measures to improve the living conditions in detention facilities for migrants and asylum seekers in accordance with international standards and ensure that everyone in those facilities has access to medical care, interpreters, adequate food and social support;

(d) Conduct effective, thorough and impartial investigations into all reports of abuses and violations of human rights perpetrated against migrants and asylum seekers, particularly those committed in detention facilities and at the State party's border with Yemen, prosecute and punish adequately those convicted with penalties commensurate with the offences, and provide victims of discriminatory acts with adequate redress and support;

(e) Refrain from collective expulsion, deportation and pushback, provide access to its territory for persons in need of international protection, respect the principle of non-refoulement and conduct investigations into cases of collective expulsion, pushback and excessive use of force and violence by law enforcement officials against migrants, refugees and asylum-seekers;

(f) Review its legal framework on the lethal use of force by border law enforcement officials to ensure that it is in accordance with international law and international standards, including the Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials, the United Nations Human Rights Guidance on Less-Lethal Weapons in Law Enforcement and the Basic Principles on the Use of Force and Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials.

Training, education and other measures to combat prejudice and intolerance

49. The Committee takes note of the information provided by the delegation on the trainings for judges on international human rights conventions and general campaigns on human rights. The Committee, nevertheless, is concerned about the lack of integration of human rights into the education system and about the prevalence of racist stereotypes in the State party (art. 7).

50. The Committee recommends that the State party increase its efforts to conduct public awareness-raising campaigns, with measurable outcomes, targeting the general public, civil servants, law enforcement officials and members of the judicial authorities on the promotion of ethnic and cultural diversity, tolerance, inter-ethnic understanding and respect for diversity.

D. Other recommendations

Ratification of other treaties

51. Bearing in mind the indivisibility of all human rights, the Committee encourages the State party to consider ratifying those international human rights treaties that it has not yet ratified, in particular treaties with provisions that have direct relevance to communities that may be subjected to racial discrimination, including the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance, the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families and the Domestic Workers Convention, 2011 (No. 189), of the International Labour Organization. Follow-up to the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action

53. In light of its general recommendation No. 33 (2009) on follow-up to the Durban Review Conference, the Committee recommends that, when implementing the Convention in its domestic legal order, the State party give effect to the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action, adopted in September 2001 by the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, taking into account the outcome document of the Durban Review Conference, held in Geneva in April 2009. The Committee requests that the State party include in its next periodic report specific information on action plans and other measures taken to implement the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action at the national level.

International Decade for People of African Descent

54. In light of General Assembly resolution 68/237, in which the Assembly proclaimed 2015–2024 the International Decade for People of African Descent, and Assembly resolution 69/16 on the programme of activities for the implementation of the International Decade, and considering that the International Decade is coming to an end, the Committee requests that the State party to include in its next periodic report an account of the measures taken to implement the programme of activities and on the sustainable measures and policies put in place in collaboration with people of African descent and their organizations, taking into account the Committee's general recommendation No. 34 (2011) on racial discrimination against people of African descent.

Consultations with civil society

55. The Committee recommends that the State party continue consulting and increasing its dialogue with civil society organizations working in the area of human rights protection, in particular those working to combat racial discrimination, in connection with the preparation of the next periodic report and in follow-up to the present concluding observations.

Dissemination of information

56. The Committee recommends that the State party's reports be made readily available and accessible to the public at the time of their submission and that the concluding observations of the Committee with respect to those reports be similarly made available to all government bodies entrusted with the implementation of the Convention, in the official and other commonly used languages, as appropriate.

Common core document

57. The Committee encourages the State party to submit its common core document in accordance with the harmonized guidelines on reporting under the international human rights treaties, in particular those on the common core document, as adopted at the fifth inter-committee meeting of the human rights treaty bodies held in June 2006.¹⁵ In the light of General Assembly resolution 68/268, the Committee urges the State party to observe the limit of 42,400 words for such documents.

Paragraphs of particular importance

58. The Committee wishes to draw the attention of the State party to the particular importance of the recommendations contained in paragraphs 22 (racial profiling and use of lethal force), 26 (criminal justice system and death penalty), 38 (situation of the Howeitat Bedouin tribe), 42 (domestic workers), and 48 (migrants, asylum seekers and refugees) above and requests the State party to provide detailed information in its next periodic report on the concrete measures taken to implement those recommendations.

Follow-up to the concluding observations

59. In accordance with article 9 (1) of the Convention and rule 65 of its rules of procedure, the Committee requests the State party to provide, within one year of the adoption of the present concluding observations, information on its implementation of the recommendations contained in paragraphs 18 (a) and (b) (complaints of racial discrimination), 20 (a) (hate speech and hate crimes), and 40 (d) (migrant workers) above.

60. The Committee commends the State party for the timely submission of its last follow-up report on its previous concluding observations.

Preparation of the next periodic report

61. The Committee recommends that the State party submit its combined twelfth and thirteenth periodic reports, as a single document, by 22 October 2028, taking into account the reporting guidelines adopted by the Committee during its seventy-first session¹⁶ and addressing all the points raised in the present concluding observations. In light of General Assembly resolution 68/268, the Committee urges the State party to observe the limit of 21,200 words for periodic reports and 42,400 words for the common core document.
